

DELEGATES BACK TO PREPARE PROGRAMS TO SPEED SESSIONS

Believe French Will Have Delegation
Back Soon

LONDON, March 3.—With the prospects for the early return of a French delegation to the five-power naval conference better than they have been at any time during the last two weeks, delegates of the other four powers returned from their week-end vacations today ready to map out programs which will help accelerate the negotiations after the return of the French.

An executive session of the American delegation was scheduled for today at which many important matters were to be discussed. Not the least of these was a petition of 1,200 prominent Americans urging that the American delegates strive for actual reduction of armaments.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams struck a note calculated to discourage pessimistic statements regarding the ultimate success of the conference. In a radio address broadcast across the ocean, he stated the American delegates would remain in London "until their task was finished."

He outlined the progress already made at the conference as follows:

(1) A virtual decision of the method of limitation; (2) an agreement to have a treaty restricting submarine attacks on merchant ships; (3) near-conciliation of the Anglo-American naval programs; (4) good prospects of settling the American-Japanese disagreement over the heavy cruiser rule.

The entire British delegation, including representatives from the dominions, will meet late this afternoon to discuss the progress of the cruiser negotiations between the United States and Japan, of which Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald has been advised.

In spite of the American insistence that no new proposals have been made to Japan by America, it is understood that the Japanese delegates are inclined to consider the suggestions made last week by Senator David A. Reed in the nature of new proposals.

Tsunao Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to England, submitted "counter-proposals" on Friday and again discussed them with Senator Reed yesterday.

A meeting between the heads of the delegations scheduled to be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow to consider the experts' report on categories probably will be cancelled unless Premier Andre Tardieu authorizes Ambassador Fleuriot to represent France as an official delegate.

PECK WITHHOLDS DECISION ON RACE

CINCINNATI, O., March 3.—The decision of John W. Peck, former federal judge, as to whether or not he will be a candidate for governor is anxiously being awaited by the man's friends here. He has received numerous requests that he enter the primaries for the Democratic nomination.

Should Peck throw his hat into the political ring and obtain the nomination for the race for the governorship would most likely be a contest between two Cincinnati men, Cooper for the Republicans and Peck for the Democrats.

Stands by Lover

Although Eleanor Roy, 17-year-old daughter of the farmer on whose land in Oakland county, Michigan, James Baker, confessed poisoner of eight people, was captured, by Detroit police, declares she loves Baker, she has promised to aid the investigation. Above, she was snapped as she was being questioned in an effort to learn how Baker armed himself with two pistols and a knife with which he intended to slay two detectives who were returning him to New York.

FOKER ALICE DIES

"Poker" Alice Tubbs of Rapid City, S. D., famous veteran of the gold rush days, who died at Rapid City following an operation. "Poker" Alice, as a girl, went out with the first of her three husbands to scoop the gold out of the Black Hills in the days of '76. She remained, not to dig for gold, but to turn her hand to poker. By playing good poker she won fame and on many occasions won more gold in a single night than most prospectors dug from the hills in a year.

STORM FORCES MAIL PILOT DOWN; LANDS IN CLEVELAND PARK

Flyer Uninjured In Hazardous Forced Landing.

CLEVELAND, March 3.—Unable to find the Cleveland airport because of a blinding snowstorm, Harry Sievers, flying the Pigeon-burg-to-Cleveland air mail route, made a hazardous but successful forced landing in Edgewater Park today.

Sievers brought his craft safely to earth in the face of a whipping wind on a baseball diamond near the lake front which was covered with dangerous snow drifts. He was uninjured in the landing.

After the mail cargo of the plane had been taken to the post-office by truck, the craft was flown to the Clifford Hall hangar.

The riotous rampage of the March lion, bringing mid-winter weather and blanketing northern Ohio with a two-inch snowfall, has been responsible for at least three deaths and injuries to scores of persons.

Lucille Jones, 38, a homeless woman, was found dead in a doorway here from exposure.

John Rummel, 45, of Youngstown, was found frozen to death in a shed here last night.

Ice and snow-sheathed roads were blamed today for the automobile accident near Port Clinton yesterday in which Mrs. Eugene Middleton, 35, of Catawaba, was killed and John Johnson of the U. S. coast guard was seriously injured.

Numerous other accidents resulted from skidding automobiles and persons falling on ice coated sidewalks and streets.

Temperatures throughout the state were sent tumbling far below the freezing point by the lashing blizzard that struck Ohio early yesterday evening. Weather officials here reported that the mercury sank to its lowest mark at 6:30 this morning when the temperature was registered at twelve above. At 9:30 a. m. mercury had crept to sixteen above.

TWENTY FIFTH DIES

CINCINNATI, O., March 3.—Hamilton County's twenty-fifth automobile fatality of the present year had occurred today. Clifford Clark, 35, Sharonville Railroad clerk, is the victim. He was fatally injured when the car on which he was riding was sideswiped by another automobile. Clark was standing on the running board and was crushed.

UNKNOWN KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., March 3.—Attempts are being made here today to identify the body of a man who was run down and killed in Columbus traffic yesterday. The man's thumb and three fingers of his left hand had been cut off and he had an artificial right eye.

PREMIER OF CANADA TO INTRODUCE LAWS TO CONTROL LIQUOR

Proposed Measure Attempts To Halt Contraband

OTTAWA, Ont., March 3.—New legislation designed to stop the flow of Canadian liquor into the United States by cutting off the supply at the source will be introduced by parliament tomorrow by Premier Mackenzie King, it was learned today.

The proposed legislation, which has the full backing of the administration, would comprise the most sweeping measures yet taken to prevent contraband liquor from flowing across the border.

The Canadian government proposes not only to cut off the supply at the source, namely, the distilleries, but also contemplates drastic measures to prevent liquor shipments from clearing from Canadian ports.

All motorboats on the great lakes, seagoing vessels, motor vehicles and airplanes will be rigorously inspected before clearing for American ports.

According to sponsors of the bill, six big distilleries in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec are the chief sources of the $30,000,000 worth of whiskey which is said to go over the border annually into the United States.

In the hope of dealing a "knockout blow" to bootleggers, the government, under the terms of the proposed measure, will refuse to release liquor from the distilleries except for sale to government liquor stores in Canada and for export to countries which may import legally.

While the proposed legislation is assured of passage in Parliament, there is considerable opposition. Most of the opponents of the measure base their stand on the argument that by virtue of the bill Canada will be "kowtowing" to the United States in the latter's efforts to enforce the Volstead act.

Supporters of the bill, on the other hand, maintain that it will be a step in retention of friendly relations with the United States. They feel Canada should have no official connection with criminal gangs whose activities are aimed at defeat of the prohibition amendment.

Government backers of the measure point out that another "I'm Alone" incident might occur any day on the Great Lakes or the Detroit River if Canada does not take drastic legislative measures to refuse all "co-operation" with law-breakers, racketeers, gunmen and other criminals who now ply the lucrative trade by quenching Uncle Sam's thirst.

PASSENGERS KILL DRIVER

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Harry M. Melton, 38, taxicab driver, was dying today in a hospital after his passengers, who had run up a $9 bill, directed him to a lonely road near Hyattsville, Md., early yesterday and beat him with a lead pipe. Today he had not regained consciousness.

Police believe his assailants either beat him when he probably followed them after they left his cab in Hyattsville in fear they would not pay him, or was lured to the secluded section to be robbed.

Police are looking for three men and a woman who are believed to have engaged Melton's cab here late Saturday night.

INNOCENT WITNESS TO ACCIDENT SLAIN

CHICAGO, March 3.—Because he expressed his opinion regarding the responsibility for an automobile accident which resulted in nothing worse than a dented fender, Arthur Dolan, 26, was slugged and killed by one of the drivers today.

After the two machines collided, the drivers argued over the cause. Dolan, spectator, stated which man he believed responsible. The man named slugged him with a jack handle and leaped into his car and hospital. Dolan died enroute to a hospital.

The drivers were negroes.

YOUTH REMAINS IN COMA FOR 26 DAYS

UKIAH, Cal., March 3.—Some improvement has been noted in the condition of Jack Harvey, 14-year-old boy who has been in a state of coma for twenty-six days. The youth suffered concussion of the brain when he was struck by an automobile. His nurse today reported that he had shown signs of returning to consciousness and once tried to say "enough" when he was being given a drink of water.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 3.—Despondency over illness was blamed today for the suicide of John Hetzima, who was found hanging in Mill Creek Park yesterday.

DIES SUDDENLY

SALEM, O., March 3.—Heart failure was blamed today for the death of Mrs. James Evans, 52, who collapsed in front of her home yesterday while sweeping snow from the sidewalk.

TWO YEGGS SLAIN WHEN TRAPPED IN THEATER

DETROIT, March 3.—Caught like rats in a trap two alleged armed safe-crackers were shot and killed in a gun battle with two policemen early today while attempting to open a safe in the Harper Theater.

The men who were killed were Phillip Toomey, 30, and Leo Gurbada, alias Kelsch, 26.

One of the bandits fired three shots at Patrolman Donald Bond, one of which came so close the Bondy's face was burned.

The other officer was Sergeant Isaac Farley.

In attempting to escape, the bandits were trapped in the dome of the ventilating shaft. When the bandits were shot they tumbled down the shaft and it was necessary to call the fire department and have them cut a hole in the roof of the theater and lower tackle to pull the bandits out of the building. They died on their way to a hospital.

CHANGES IN POLICE DEPARTMENT HERE EXPECTED TUESDAY

Appointment of two regular patrolmen on the Xenia Police Department from a list of six eligible men certified to him by the Civil Service Commission, following an examination taken by seventeen applicants last Friday night, is expected to be made Tuesday by City Manager M. C. Smith.

As under the terms of the city charter the city manager is recognized as the chief of police and fire departments, a new officer in charge, which corresponds to the title of police chief, is expected to be appointed.

Michael E. Graham, who has held the position of officer in charge of the department for the last ten years and has served on the police force for nearly twenty-three years, will voluntarily retire from the post because of poor health and is expected to be appointed to the newly-created position of day desk man assuming these duties when his successor is named.

He has announced that he will retire from the force at the end of this year and will probably be the first man to take advantage of the police pension retirement fund, created in an ordinance passed by City Commission, and which will not be available until the first of next year.

City Manager Smith has not indicated who will be appointed officer in charge of the police department but Captain O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, stood first in the matter of grades among the applicants who took the recent civil service examination.

Despite the fact only one addition is to be made to the force, increasing the personnel to eight regular patrolmen, two civil service appointments are to be made because Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, has never been under civil service but has served for six years by appointment as a special patrolman, assigned to duties as a traffic officer. He is on the eligibility list certified to the city manager.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of stories relating the history of aviation from its earliest beginnings down to modern flight.)

One dreary November night, in 1782, two brothers sat beside their fire place in the little French town of Annonay, watching clouds of smoke curl upwards. As they sat gazing at the rising smoke a sense of power came over them, and being serious students of science, they fell to speculating.

Interested, the brothers began to experiment. Fastening a balloon made of a paper bag over a small dish containing fire, they filled it with hot air. But their efforts were doomed to failure since the air in the bag became cool before there was enough in it to lift it.

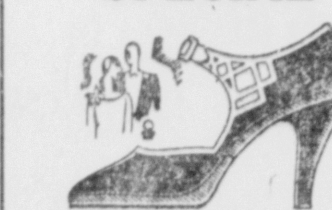

A Woman's Suggestion
A story, current at that time, tells us that a widowed neighbor, seeing the clouds of smoke billowing from the house, rushed in to see what was happening. When they explained their predicament to her she recommended that they fasten the tray of fire to the bottom of the bag. Success greeted this effort and the first balloon sailed aloft.

Strangely the Montgolfier brothers did not attribute the ascension to the lightness of the heated air, but to a "vapour" which they believed the burning paper gave off. Then they ventured out of doors and their bag shot to a height of seventy feet. Their next bag, the first to be called a "balloon" had a 600-cubic foot capacity and was so-called because it resembles a vessel used in chemistry by that name. After a successful ascension of 600 feet the brothers decided to tell the public of their invention.

First Public Flight
On June 5, 1783, they staged a public demonstration with a balloon 110 feet in circumference, inflated with hot air from a fire of chips and shavings. To the amazement of the crowds it rose to a height of 6,000 feet and traveled almost a mile, and a half before it fell to the ground, when the air cooled.

Then came the command to appear at the Court of Versailles before Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. In the presence of the nobility the balloon shot to a height of 1,500 feet, bearing aloft a basket containing a sheep, cockerel and duck.

the ascent, adding that, if they landed safely they should be pardoned. This was most distasteful to an impetuous young Frenchman, Pilatre de Rozier, who cried out, "Shall vile criminals have the first glory of rising into the sky?" The king then gave his permission for de Rozier to ascend.

Man Ascends
On November 21, 1783, de Rozier and his countryman, the Marquis d'Arlandes, rose into the air before a great crowd in a huge affair "tall as a church tower," with a mouth fifteen feet across. Below it an iron brazier filled with burning fuel was suspended. They landed unscathed, twenty-five minutes after their departure.

Two years later this brave young man was killed when he attempted to cross the English channel in a double balloon, combining the "hot air" and "inflammable air" principles. The balloon caught fire before he left French territory.

However, the time had come to replace the unwieldy hot air balloon. It could be inflated quickly and cheaply, but was dangerous, and its range of flight was governed by the amount of fuel it could carry. Also its size, relative to its lifting power was too great.

A Parisian professor of physics, M. Charles, constructed a small balloon and filled it with hydrogen obtained by the chemical action of sulphuric acid upon iron filings.

Hydrogen introduced
Although the balloon held but 940 cubic feet of gas, its inflation took several hours. When released it burst as soon as it reached earth.

ried atmosphere, since the neck had been tied to prevent the escape of gas. Peasants who saw it fall in a field, destroyed it with pitchforks, thinking it an evil spirit. King Louis was forced to issue a declaration forbidding interference with any contraption which might descend from the skies.

From this time on hydrogen was little used because of its expense. Coal gas could be had readily from gas works and although several times heavier than hydrogen, its cheapness made it desirable.

The first ascent with coal gas was made in 1821, by the English balloonist, Charles Green, on the coronation day of King Edward IV. Coal gas is still widely used today because of its cheapness, although hydrogen has proved more satisfactory for dirigibles.

WEDNESDAY MARKS BEGINNING OF LENT

Religious groups that celebrate Lent are preparing for the annual observance of that period of fasting, prayer and self-denial which opens Wednesday.

Tuesday, known as Shrove Tuesday, marks the end of social functions and pleasures for church members who follow the Lenten restrictions and Wednesday in the church calendar is Ash Wednesday, beginning of the period of Lent that ends on Holy Saturday, the day before Easter.

Lent is an Anglo-Saxon word meaning "spring" but in the ecclesiastic world has come to represent that period of forty days and nights that Christ spent in the wilderness, fasting and praying to prepare Himself for His public career. At St. Brigid Catholic Church the period will be observed as usual by night services three times a week, opening Wednesday evening with a sermon and the symbolic distribution of the ashes as features of the services.

Lenten services will be held Sunday, Wednesday and Friday evenings during the period.

Stay at Home and VISIT..too

WINTER, as a rule, keeps you closer at home, and you see less of your friends in other towns.

But that is no reason why you should hear less from them. Many people are calling their out-of-town friends by telephone just as they casually talk to those in town.

Out-of-town telephone service today is much like the local service. Give "Long Distance" the out-of-town number and you are connected while you hold the line; you hear as clearly as when you talk to a neighbor.

The cost is surprisingly low. For 25 cents you can send your voice 25 miles, or 100 miles for 70 cents.

W. R. Torrence Retires As Freight Agent Here

Having given nearly half a century of service to the Pennsylvania Railroad, William R. Torrence, Xenia freight agent, was placed on the company's pension Roll of Honor Saturday. He has been in the employ of the railroad for exactly forty-six years and five months, and had been the agent here for twenty-four years.

Because of ill health Mr. Torrence has been off duty since February, 1929 and V. W. Burba has been acting agent here. He spent the past summer in Europe and at present is in St. Petersburg, Fla., but expects to return to Xenia about the middle of April.

Mr. Torrence was born on a farm near Xenia January 2, 1864 and in March of that year his parents moved to a farm near Cedarville. He attended the public schools there and in 1881 was graduated from high school.

Following his graduation he worked on the farm, as clerk in a grocery and in the post office. In 1883 he commenced working as clerk at the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Cedarville during the absence of the regular clerk, who was a telegraph operator on the extra list. This clerk obtained a permanent position on October 1 and Mr. Torrence was given the regular job of clerk.

On the death of the agent in December, 1888, he was given the agency. In 1896 he was transferred to the agency at Loveland, O., in 1898 to the agency at South Charleston and in April, 1906, to Xenia as freight agent.

He is a member of the First United Presbyterian Church and is on the board of elders; a member of the Kiwanis Club and on the board of directors; a member of the board of directors of Woodland Cemetery and belongs to various Pennsylvania Railroad organizations.

Coming at the request of the Xenia Ministerial Association, Leon Ray Livingston, Erie, Pa., traveler, author and orator, delivered a gripping and instructive sermon on the subject, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight," here Sunday at a unique service held in the First M. E. Church.

A nicely filled church auditorium greeted the lecturer. Livingston was well known for years as a hobo under the tramp symbol of "A. No. 1," and since his conversion to Christianity has been conducting a nation wide campaign endeavoring to warn parents and children of the consequences of the life of a wanderer.

The speaker declared that the public is unacquainted with the number of boys and girls between the ages of twelve and seventeen that leave home every year, never to return again. "Two hundred thousand boys and 18,000 girls between the above mentioned ages left their homes during 1929 and a very meager percentage of them will return during the years to come," said Mr. Livingston.

He related his life experiences first as a runaway eleven year old boy from a comfortable San Francisco home because of a certain childish fear of parental punishment which he was about to receive because of a misdemeanor in school. The youthful wanderlust, plus this fear, caused him to first become a runaway and then a slave to the hobo's life. The account of his first position and his aspirations of becoming rich were told in a vivid manner that held his audience spellbound.

Livingston explained how generous persons respond to the persuasive methods used by the wayfaring class of people. He told of how men mark the homes where the intruding guests of the road are invited to come in and sit down to a meal or where they are given something to eat on the premises of the generous. Such a place is marked with a circle asserted the speaker. "Often this circle is placed on the fence, mailbox, on the side of the house, and even on the garbage can that may be setting in the alley. A cross within the circle is a bad sign usually indicating a mad dog, a cross wife or husband, and a place where food is not obtainable by those who beg it," said the famous ex-tramp.

"A No. 1," the name by which this man was known by his fellow travelers in the "rod riding profession," was given to the speaker because of his abstinence from tobacco, alcoholic beverages and vulgar language. Livingston left his home at the age of 11 and until he was 41 he clung to the "rods" covering this country, Europe, South America, Alaska, and Asia. During this time he traveled no less than 520,000 miles at a cost of about $7.61. A happy marriage took him from the open road and turned him to the more substantial life. His famous symbol "A. No. 1" may still be found carved or painted on water tanks and railroad stations all over the world. The famous lecturer is making his headquarters in Dayton while in this section of the state and will appear

Miss Gertrude Manifold, since last June the constant companion of William Howard Taft, former Chief Justice and President of the United States, in her capacity as his personal trained nurse. Miss Manifold is now in constant attendance upon Mr. Taft and in her hands rests much of the responsibility for his hoped-for recovery.

LARGE SIZED BILLS TO PASS OUT OF USE

Xenia banks were notified by the treasury department at Washington, D. C., last week to discontinue immediately the issuance of currency of the larger style and to redeem all old bills with the new small currency.

The recent order is believed by bank officials to be the final step in putting into circulation only bills of the smaller and more convenient type of all denominations.

Bank officials were advised that the treasury department now has available a sufficient amount of the new currency to redeem all of the old bills.

SENIOR PLAYERS OF ANTIOCH WILL GIVE THIRTEENTH CHAIR

Exploring what to them will be comparatively virgin territory in the dramatic field, the Senior Players of Antioch College are holding final rehearsals for their production, "The Thirteenth Chair," by Bayard Veiller, to be presented in the Yellow Springs Opera House next Friday evening.

The Antioch Players have given comedies, melodramas and fantasies but never a mystery thriller and this type of play will be a new venture for them.

"The Thirteenth Chair" lives up to all the requirements of a good mystery, embracing a spiritualistic seance, a murder and a murderer whose identity denies disclosure for a long time, according to Basil Pillard, director, who declares the coming performance promises to equal the success of the production of "R. U. R.," given by the Players some years ago and which has since become the standard for excellence of performance by this group.

There of the leading members of the cast are Earl Fisher, who will take the part of "Braddish Trent"; Miss Janet Hunter, who will impersonate "Helen O'Neill," and Charles Allyn, who will have the role of "Tim Donohue."

The complete cast is as follows: Helen O'Neill, Janet Hunter; Will Crosby, Gunnar Beckman; Mrs. Crosby, Lillian Schuele; Roscoe Crosby, Phillip Bassett; Edward Wales, John Walmsley; Mary Eastwood, Eleanor Henderson; Helen Trent, Constance Brackett; Braddish Trent, Earl Fisher; Howard Standish, James Early; Phillip Mason, Earl Welch; Elizabeth Erskine, Hilda Milbank; Grace Standish, Clara Berry; Polly, Dickson Steinbeck; Madame La Grange, Janet Leckie; Tim Donohue, Charles Allyn; Sergeant Dunn, John Henley; Doonan, John Mark Grace 11.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

My lips shall greatly rejoice when I sing unto thee; and my soul, which thou hast redeemed. My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long; for they are confounded, for they are brought unto shame, that seek my hurt.—Psalm lxxi, 23, 24.

WARNING LETTERS

A letter, warning him that an eastern gunman had arrived in Los Angeles to kill him, caused Calvin Coolidge merely to elevate his eyebrows, as he handed the letter to a bodyguard, with the remark: "I guess this belongs to you." The letter reads as if it had been written by a scantly literate crank. Although it purports to be the opposite of a threat it might well be dealt with as one. The annoyance in either case is about the same as in the other.

A president of the United States for the time being is protected against threats to take his life or to cause him bodily harm by a statute providing a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for five years or both for such offense. The same safeguard should be thrown about presidential nominees and former presidents. A nominee is exposed to annoyance by cranks with anticipatory grousches. A man who has left the White House is equally exposed to annoyance by persons who fancy they have grudges based on something he did while in office. These two causes of molestation are ex-officio and might well be treated as such. Although in most respects he again becomes a private citizen, a man who has once been president never rid himself entirely of the consequences of his having enjoyed that exalted status.

Why anyone should want to kill Mr. Coolidge or even to annoy him with crank letters is not easy to see. A distinguished citizen, who has served the nation and his adopted state long and faithfully, who made an excellent president and now asks only a chance to make an honest living by his native industry, Calvin Coolidge would seem to be among the very first persons in the country to be exempted from threats and "warnings."

UNWELCOME PROSPERITY

Sales of pistols and revolvers in this country during the first seven months of the current fiscal year increased nearly 190 per cent over the corresponding period last year, according to an estimate by the bureau of internal revenue based on receipts from excise taxes. At the same time the exportation of these weapons decreased.

We are at peace with the rest of the world and consequently do not need any such output of one-hand guns to repel invasion. Are we at peace with ourselves when the domestic consumption of these convenient means of snuffing out life jumps approximately 200 per cent in a single year? Obviously we are not; and neither shall we be as long as we go on arming the underworld at this rate. The curve of murder parallels that of pistol and revolver sales. The traffic in these weapons is one of which this country cannot be proud and the prosperity of which will be scanned with an apprehensive eye.

The fact that about as many cigarettes are smuggled into Canada as are produced there, according to Canadian manufacturers, should have some bearing on the matter of liquor clearances.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

CHICKENS, NOT LAMBS

It was said long ago that a certain Mary took a lamb to school one day. Martha May Smith, who goes to Taylor university, in Indiana, takes her chickens to school instead. With a flock of 150 white leghorns which she moved over to her college town she is paying her way through school.

The ambition to get an education is one of the most persistent and durable of all ambitions. You just can't stop people like Martha May Smith. She is going to be somebody and to get somewhere.

WHAT THE BOY IS GOING TO DO

Universities do well to put on their teaching staffs a "director of placement." It is the director's business to help the college boy and girl, while they are still in school, to make up their minds what they want to do in life and what they can do best. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern, says:

"There is a large economic loss, due to men shifting about in the first few years after leaving college, because they were not adjusted to business conditions. The problem now is to do the adjusting while the man is still in college. This will be largely pioneer work."

"We hope that by contact with a man who comes to the university with an experience of 25 years in the business world, our students may learn more about the requirements of business and be able to determine beforehand what work to take up. We also hope to impress upon them the necessity for rapid adjustment to business requirements."

OLD MAN STILL GOOD

"We never ask a man's age for the purpose of determining his value to us."

That's a happy word from C. F. Barth, vice-president of the Chevrolet Motor Co.

"We have many men in the organization who have been with us since the company started, less than 20 years ago," Mr. Barth says. "It has been necessary in many instances to transfer these men to other positions fitted for older men. There is no doubt that some of them have 'slowed up,' but they have more than made up for this in the experience they bring and the more intelligent way of handling their job."

TALKING AROUND THE WORLD

Everyone who uses the telephone is aware of the tremendous expansion and improvement of telephone service within the past few years. Talking across the continent is like talking to the next town, and connections with European countries is a simple matter. Theodore G. Miller, official of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., says easy communication with South America is nearly here. He predicts worldwide telephone service. We can expect no less.

And all of this will mean much for the preservation of the peace of the world.

ABUNDANCE AND POVERTY

It is sometimes carelessly said that modern machinery, resulting in mass production with less human labor, has resulted in poverty. This is the conclusion of superficial thinking.

"Surely," says Professor Scott, Yale teacher and engineer, "the ability which has produced the machine civilization of the western world is capable of realizing its unlimited opportunities. For the first time in history our machine production creates an abundance which makes it possible to eliminate poverty."

What is the Einstein theory? Some question—in five words; considering that Professor Einstein has been quoted to the effect that only 12 men in the world are advanced enough to understand his hypothesis. Nevertheless there is a compactly-uttered answer, once furnished by Dr. William Bowie, of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, one of today's foremost scientists—"The Einstein theory seems to be an attempt to express the universe in mathematical terms." Will that do?

Musical

Why is there no seventh overtone on a piano? Because a piano is so constructed that the hammer strikes the string exactly where it would vibrate for the seventh overtone. This arrangement is intentional, as that vibration would be inharmonious.

Home Brew

How much beer and wine can a person legally possess in the home under the prohibition law? Not a drop of beer of one-half of one per cent or more. Not a drop of wine if it is "intoxicating in fact." Cider and fruit juices are not necessarily limited to less than one-half of one per cent (beer is), but as soon as that limit is passed the possessor may be called on to convince a jury that they are not "intoxicating in fact." If he fails to do it, he is a law-breaker.

Philanthropy

What is the name of the philanthropic fund recently placed in the hands of ex-President Coolidge, Al Smith and Julius Rosenwald and where may these three be addressed? The Hubert Fund. Coolidge, Northampton, (Mass.) Smith, 331 Madison Avenue, New York City. Rosenwald, 4901 Ellis Avenue, Chicago.

Byrd-Bird

How does Richard Byrd pronounce his name? The Byrds of Virginia, of whom the polar explorer is one, pronounce their name "Bird."

34-Year Term

What United States Supreme court justice served longest? John Marshall, Joseph Story, Stephen J. Field and John M. Harlan each served 34 years.

Peacocks' Eggs

Do peacocks lay eggs? If so, are they good layers? The female of the species, yes. Not the peacocks. The former are not prolific layers, the breed having been developed for ornament rather than for utility.

Pennsylvania

What representation has Pennsylvania in congress? Two senators and 36 representatives.

Manhattan rears its giant structures of steel and stone, their creators vying with each other for the vain title of Lord of the Loftiest Tower—and meanwhile the old Woolworth building remains dear to the heart of the tourist.

Day after day the Out-of-Town Man-About-Town, ignoring Mr. Chrysler's cloud-piercing monstrosity, pays his 50 cents for an elevator ride to the turret of the Woolworth pile and on being informed that the structure is 792 feet and one inch in height, laughingly inquires:

"Where is the extra inch located, at the top or the bottom?" The Chrysler affair is just another of the stone; but the Woolworth building is the Woolworth building.

TOO MANY CROOKS SPOIL THE BROTH!

OTHER PEOPLE'S MORALS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—All around progressives and 100 per cent stand patters are about equally scarce in congress.

Closely examined, a progressive is apt to be found unpleasantly intolerant in streaks. Strictly investigated, a stand patter is just as likely to prove himself thoroughly broadminded on some subjects.

Strait-laced ideas concerning other people's morals are so characteristic of the otherwise progressive element as to be almost the rule. This is precisely the line of thought which lawmakers of ultra-conservative views most generally tend to follow to liberal conclusions.

However, there are exceptions. Two of them (one on each side) have been especially prominent recently in the United States senate. Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico probably is as completely enlightened a liberal as ever came to Washington. If there is any question on which Senator Reed Smoot of Utah is not an arch-conservative, it never has been developed in debate at the capitol or brought out by a confabulation in a committee room.

Senator Cutting led the fight to deny to custom house clerks the power to decide what foreign books Americans may read. Senator Smoot led the advocates of a rigid censorship policy.

Curiously enough, the "naughty literature" paragraph, over which the controversy raged, was included in the tariff bill—whatever the connection may be between import taxes on manganese, dairy products, woven goods and similar commodities, and the writings of authors like Shakespeare, Cervantes and Moliere.

At any rate, the house of representatives passed it with the rest of the bill, and the Utah statesman put up the struggle of his life to preserve it, unchanged by the senate.

Senator Cutting did not, of course, as Senator Smoot represented (and undoubtedly honestly believed) favor flooding the country with obscene foreign books. He did maintain that the average custom house inspector is unqualified to choose literature for Yale, Harvard, Princeton, other American institutions of higher learning, the Congressional Library and this country's men of letters generally.

Naturally an argument, in any real sense, was impossible. Senator Cutting was disgusted and Senator Smoot was horrified. The latter read voluminously.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Broiled Steak Mashed Potatoes
Meat Gravy
Creamed Cauliflower or Cabbage
Celery Green Onions
Butterscotch Rolls
Salted Nuts Coffee

I am suggesting a sweet roll in this menu and no other desert than salted nuts. You might serve jelly or jam or cheese with the rolls, the latter preferably. Olives, ripe, stuffed or plain green, may take the place of the onions if you cannot get them.

Today's Recipes

Butterscotch Rolls—Two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, two-thirds teaspoon salt, four tablespoons shortening, two-thirds cup milk, three tablespoons butter, one-half cup brown sugar. Sift dry ingredients, add shortening, mix it in with a fork. Add milk to make a fairly soft dough. Knead slightly and roll out one-fourth inch thick. Spread well with creamed butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. Roll up as for jelly roll and cut in about one-half inch pieces. Stand these on end in a well-buttered pan, small muffin tins or in muffin rings and bake in a hot oven, at 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for 20 minutes. Centers of rolls curl up and will be glazed on edges.

Mince Meat Cookies
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

One-fourth cup shortening, one-half cup sugar, one beaten egg, one cup moist mince meat, one-fourth cup chopped dates, one-fourth cup chopped nuts, one and one-fourth cups flour, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, then the egg. Add mince meat, dates and nuts. Beat well. Sift dry ingredients together and add. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, 10 minutes.

EXCELLENT TOPPING FOR CAKE
COCOANUT MARSHMALLOW ICING

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—One cup shredded cocoanut, one cup granulated sugar, three tablespoons water, one egg white unbeaten, twelve marshmallows. Put the sugar, water and egg white in a double boiler and beat with a drier egg beater for seven minutes after the water is boiling. Have the marshmallows chopped in a bowl. Pour the mixture over them and beat until thick. Stir in half the cocoanut, spread quickly and sprinkle the remaining cocoanut on top.

Corn Flake Macaroons
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Two egg whites, one-half cup powdered sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two cups corn flakes, one-half cup chopped pecans. Beat egg whites until stiff and dry, add sugar and salt and fold in flakes and nuts. Drop from the tip of a spoon on to a greased paper-lined pan. Bake in a slow oven until a golden brown. Remove from the paper at once.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Diet After Sickness

"DEAR DOCTOR: Will you please write something about diet after sickness? Six years ago, by following your advice, I reduced from 232 pounds to 150, a loss of 82 pounds. This is still somewhat overweight for my height, but I feel and look better so. I find I must have an operation, which, while it is not serious, involves an abdominal incision, and so will greatly curtail my activity for some time. How can I keep from gaining, after I leave the hospital? How few calories is it safe for me to take, during the time I am practically 'at rest'? I wish to regain my strength as soon as possible, but it does seem that it shouldn't be necessary to put on a lot of fat, in order to do so."

"Your little book, Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories, is 'mother's Bible' in our home, and if you could see my Before and After pictures, you would understand what I mean when I say that I love you better than life."

MRS. B.

You are very wise in your plan not to gain after an operation, Mrs. B. It is absolutely unnecessary to do this. The foods that cause gain in weight are largely the starches and sugars and fats, or energy producing foods, and when you are using very little physical energy, as during convalescence, you don't need so much of these; and furthermore, they are not the foods which build up the strength. Getting fat doesn't build up the strength, by any means; it keeps you weaker, that is, unless you need the fat to be normal.

You must have some frankly carbohydrate food (starches and sugars), otherwise fat is not burned properly. But take them in moderation.

You will probably need an extra amount of protein, which you can get in extra cheese, milk and milk dishes, and flesh foods (although it is never wise to eat too much of the latter). And you will need extra vitamins and mineral elements which you will get in the milk and fruits and vegetables. You might also take some cod liver oil for extra vitamins A and D, and some vitavose for extra vitamin B. Ask your physician about this.

As your food needs are lessened, you will probably have to cut down markedly on your bread, cereals and sweets and oils, in order to keep your weight down, for you need the other foods I have mentioned. You should watch your scales, and determine the number of calories you need by them. If you find you are gaining too rapidly, cut out more of the unnecessary foods.

Physicians are now advising certain exercises very soon after an operation, the exercises, of course, depending upon the case. There is a new book, "Relax and Grow," by Mrs. Zella Van Ornum Gumm, printed by the Hollywood Press, Hollywood, Cal., which gives very valuable series of exercises, for all occasions. I suggest you get this and call your doctor's attention to it. The exercises will help you get into better condition and will make your food needs greater so you can have a more varied and larger diet.

For those who need them, our pamphlet on Reducing and Gaining contains instruction similar to the in my book, only in condensed form. We have also an article outlining some splendid trunk exercises. See column rules for obtaining these.

Mrs. G.: We have an article on Cold, Catarrh, etc., which will help you. See column rules for obtaining this.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following "mail charge to help cover cost of printing and handling for each article wanted. Two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper. Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The problem of the husband whose loyalty is wavering is one on which advice is most frequently asked and hardest to give. Shall he be treated as if he was ill? Tenderly cared for and his whims borne with until he recovers? Or shall he be rallied at and then left to his own devices in the hope that he will "come to his senses"? Or should he be straightaway divorced and allowed to go to the woman who has enthralled him?

Each case is different, isn't it? They can't all be treated alike. And each woman is also unlike every other woman in her attitude toward "her man." They are only similar in the first primitive rage they feel that another should dare to come between them and their mates, and the subsequent heartache.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: How shall I treat my husband? I love him dearly, and we have always been happy until a few months ago, and, of course, it is the same old story so many dear hearts have, a woman came between us. It seems sometimes he has lost all his love for me, and shows me very little attention and has his mind centered on this woman. Then again he seems to love me as he once did."

"We never quarrel over this and have lots of heart to heart talks. But it is more than I can stand when he treats me cool, and doesn't seem to care for me. It almost breaks my heart. Please tell me how I must treat him. I simply can't mean to him, for he is never mean to me. Do you think he will ever come to me?"

PEGGY.

He is a foolish, foolish man if he doesn't get over it, Peggy. For he surely couldn't meet with two such women as you in one lifetime, and if he leaves you for this other woman—no matter how fascinating she be—he is making an enormous mistake and is going to regret it prodigiously—and he deserves to!

Very, very few women are going to take your patient, liberal attitude, and be willing to talk things over with him in heart to heart talks. How he ever came to waver in his loyalty, even ever so little, passes my comprehension.

Continue to treat him as you have been doing. It may be—probably is—a passing infatuation. If your home and usual activities do not fully occupy your time, find some outside work—for unfortunate, if possible—that will leave you little time to think.

I believe your husband will return to his allegiance in time, and be heartily ashamed of this affair.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have two girl friends I like mighty well, but when I have a date with one of them the other one gets mad. I have a hard time trying to please both of them. Please tell me what to do."

H. L. F.

You probably can't, dear, so do what you think is right and if they can't become friends, let them get mad and pleased again. The only other thing to do is to choose which you like best and give the other up.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

If legs seem a little less important with our new twelve-inch hem-lines, ankles are even more so than they ever were before. And those important exercises for suppleness and carriage should be an important part of your routine.

I remember—oh, many years ago—when a clever Frenchman said, in my presence, that youth was not so much a matter of face or figure, but mostly of flexible knees. I agree with him to this extent—that youth is face and figure and flexible knees. Incidentally, and in general, do remember that dancing is wonderful to develop a well poised body and the flexibility that is so much a part of feminine grace.

It need not be social dancing. Just close the doors of the living room some morning, put on some record that sets your spirit soaring and your toes tingling, and dance. Never mind steps or grace or anything—just dance. You'll be ten years younger before you realize it!

Now for the exercises. First. Sit on a low chair or lie down on the floor. Raise your right knee as high as possible. Point the toe and try to rotate very slowly. First from the knee and then from the ankle. First move the foot around the other. Repeat from six to sixteen times.

Two. Stand on right foot, rise up on tip-toes, and extend the left leg forward then backward. Come back to your feet and repeat.

Three. Hang a pillow as high as your hip in a doorway and practice kicking at it. Raise the pillow inch by inch until you can swing, straight-kneed, almost to your head.

Four. Place a thick book on the floor. Stand with the balls of your feet on the book, letting the heels overhang. Rise on your toes, breathing in deeply as you do. Then lower your heels to the floor. Breathe out, but not too often in the beginning, for this is quite a strain for calves, ankles and all the other leg muscles. You can massage the legs after with a little cream if they become stiff.

Shaking is very good for the legs, and so simple. Lie on the bed or sit on a comfortable chair. Brace your knees firmly together and then, relaxing the muscles of the lower leg, shake first one and then the other until they are tired. Rest, and then slowly stretch the legs up, down and sideways.

It takes time to obtain result from leg, ankle and calf exercises but keep at them and you will find a marked change in contour and grace before many weeks have passed.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

As an educational factor to the high school boys and girls competing, as a means of developing sportsmanship and bringing out all the things that are best in sport, and of developing interest in the game and standardizing it, the basketball tournament is a wonderful thing. A basketball coach can get more new angles on offensive and defensive play at the meet in a couple of days than he could in a whole season of original experiment.

The county tournament, too, has resulted in the cleaning up of conditions and bringing the standards of interscholastic basketball to a common level throughout the county, for the university and state associations have co-operated to develop a wholesome supervision over playing conditions under uniform eligibility rules.

The sixteenth annual Greene County Class B basketball tournament staged at Xenia Central High gym Friday and Saturday was successful from every standpoint, including attendance and the spirited competition which developed.

In a majority of instances favorites came through as predicted. The tourney finalists, Ross Twp. and Spring Valley boys' teams, will represent Greene County in the Southwestern state sectional tournament at Springfield March 7 and 8 along with Class B schools from Clark, Logan and Champlin counties. East High School, Xenia, and Osborn High, an exempted school, will also represent this county, making a total of four Class B teams competing from here.

Sportsmanship of a high order featured the semi-final girls' game between Bryan High of Yellow Springs and Beavercreek. Jean Bassett, star Yellow Springs player, injured her right knee early in the game, but refused to quit and played throughout most of the contest on sheer nerve alone. At intervals she would have to stop and rest and on these occasions Beaver girls waived the time out that should have been credited against Yellow Springs. Beaver also permitted an extension of the half-time intermission in order to give the injured girl as much time as possible to recuperate. The game ended in a 25 to 25 tie but as under girls' rules no overtime period can be played the victory was awarded on the basis of the most field goals made by the teams. Yellow Springs had made twelve baskets against ten for Beaver and was awarded the game.

Miss Bassett, however, was unable to take part in the tourney finals against Bellbrook girls. Weakened by her absence, Yellow Springs lassies were defeated by a large margin. If she had been in the lineup the contest would undoubtedly have been much closer as earlier in the season in a game on Bellbrook's own floor, Yellow Springs lost by only two points.

Easily the outstanding player in the tournament was Swain, star Ross Twp. center. This youth, although only a sophomore, was the high individual scorer of the tournament. Against Jamestown he scored ten points, in the game with Bellbrook he tallied eleven counters, against Cedarville he scored twelve and in the final game with Spring Valley he collected fourteen points. In the tourney final he gave a spectacular exhibition of shooting, sinking field goals from all angles of the floor.

While in the eighth grade he also played on the Ross High School team as in a school with an enrollment of less than forty boys two high schoolers may play on the eighth grade team.

Two overtime games characterized the tournament, and Bowersville boys participated in both of them. In the second round a basket by Smith, center, gave Bowersville a 26 to 24 victory over Yellow Springs in a three-minute extra period, but in the semi-finals Bowersville's luck changed and it lost an overtime game to Spring Valley, 18 to 16 when H. Huff, guard, sank the winning basket with twenty seconds left to play. Bowersville's luck, however, was remarkably good.

In retaining the county feminine title for the second straight year, Bellbrook girls closed their second straight season undefeated and with a record of thirty-two successive victories. They won four out of five games without great difficulty.

Ross Twp. High Team Wins County Court Title

DEFEATS SPRING VALLEY, LAST YEAR'S CHAMPS, BY 20-17 SCORE

Bellbrook Girls Capture Title In Girls' Division For Second Straight Year; Swain Plays Superbly To Lead Boys To Victory

By PHIL FRAME

FOR the second time since the event was founded sixteen years ago, Ross Twp. High School's basketball team, without the services of its injured star forward, captured the Greene County Class B basketball crown by scoring a 20 to 17 victory over Spring Valley High, winner of the 1929 tourney, in the finals of the annual county tournament Saturday night at Xenia Central High School gymnasium. Ross won the title before in 1926.

In the feminine division, the champion Bellbrook girls' sextet, continuing the sensational play that has carried it through two consecutive seasons undefeated, retained its title for the second straight year by triumphing over Bryan High School girls, of Yellow Springs, 28 to 13 in the final round.

Despite the fact its high-scoring forward, Jerome Pittstick suffered a broken left ankle in the first round game, Ross Twp. boys exhibiting true championship fighting qualities, did not let this unfortunate occurrence bother them and their final round victory was more convincing than the three-point margin would indicate.

Spring Valley started off with a rush, registering four points in a hurry, but Ross rallied and the advantage diminished to one point when the first quarter ended with the 1929 champs leading by the score of 6 to 5.

Inspired by the spectacular shooting of its star sophomore center, Swain, the Ross quintet assumed control of the situation in the second period and went on a scoring rampage with Swain sinking baskets from every angle of the floor. When the first half ended Ross had a lead of 17 to 9 and Swain had to his personal credit six baskets.

Spring Valley braced in the third quarter but was nevertheless outscored, three points to two in this stanza, and with a margin of 20 to 11 at the end of the quarter, Ross adopted stalling tactics. This change of policy nearly proved fatal to their hopes, however, as Spring Valley launched a desperate drive and nearly overhauled its opponents. Ross failed to score a single point in the closing period while Spring Valley added six to its previous total.

Too much praise cannot be given Swain, who was the cool maneuverer of his team at all times and who scored two-thirds of his team's points. His collection amounted to fourteen and many of his fielders were from long-range and difficult angles.

Admittedly the Spring Valley quintet was off its usual game throughout the entire tournament as it experienced the greatest difficulty in winning its second round and semi-final games in order to reach the finals.

Both finalists will represent Greene County in the Southwestern sectional state tourney at Springfield Friday and Saturday.

The final girls' game was more one-sided than would have been the case had not Jean Bassett, star Yellow Springs center-forward, been injured in her team's semi-final game. Because of her injured knee she was prevented from playing in the championship finals.

Bellbrook girls, as it was, won an impressive victory, leading from start to finish. Their margin at the 4, at the half, 12 to 8 and in the close of the first quarter was 7 to 3, and 20 to 13.

Wanda Peterson was Bellbrook's principal scorer with twelve points, while her sister, Louise, contributed eight points as did Hoffman. Kintz scored seven for the losers.

Winning four tournament games decisively, Bellbrook lassies completed their second successive season unbeaten within and without county court circles and with a record of thirty-two victories in a row.

In the semi-finals, Ross Twp. caught the dangerous Cedarville quintet apparently off its stride, and won a surprisingly easy victory by a 30 to 18 margin. In this game Swain tallied twelve points while Arment, subbing for the injured Pittstick, also played a wonderful game and scored eight points. Ross settled the verdict in the first half, which ended in its favor, 16 to 7.

Spring Valley, in surviving its semi-final round, had a big scare at the hands of the scrappy Bowersville team and was forced into an overtime period to win. Bowersville had a lead of 9 to 4 at the half-way mark but Spring Valley came back and squared the score at 16 to 16 when the game ended. In the three-minute overtime session, H. Huff, guard, shot the winning basket with only twenty seconds left to play.

The semi-finals of the feminine division were featured by the fact the Yellow Springs-Bevercreek game ended in a 25 to 25 tie. The victory was awarded on the basis of field goals made by each team, because girls' basketball rules prohibit the playing of an overtime game. As Yellow Springs had twelve baskets to its credit against ten for Beaver, it was declared the winner.

Bellbrook girls had a battle on their hands all the way in eliminating Ross Twp. girls in the other semi-final match and Ross actually led by one point at the close of the first period. At the half Bellbrook had a one-point margin but the Rosses' shooting weakened in the last two periods.

This year's all-county tournament selections in both the boys' and girls' divisions were more difficult than before, due to the various styles of play, the sacrifice of individual effort for team play, and the fact there were more good contenders for all positions from both divisions than in past seasons.

Five of the nine competing schools are represented on the first all-tourney boys' team selected by E. E. Prugh, Ohio Wesleyan, and G. Laymon, Georgetown, who officiated the games. Bowersville, Yellow Springs, Ross Twp., Spring Valley and Cedarville each earned a player on the all-star quintet.

The champion Bellbrook sextet rates two positions, Beavercreek, two and Yellow Springs and Caesars Creek one each on the first all-tourney girls' team.

LUMPKIN OF SPRING VALLEY WINS IN FREE THROWS

Representing Spring Valley High School, Lumpkin won the second annual foul shooting contest held in connection with the county Class B basketball tournament. Lumpkin and Linton, of Caesars Creek, tied for first honors with twenty-six out of a possible thirty free throws but in the toss-off, Lumpkin made thirteen out of fifteen shots and Linton's best was nine out of fifteen. Both boys, however, will represent Greene County in the sectional free throw contest at Springfield Friday and Saturday.

In a similar free throw contest held for the girls, Kintz, Yellow Springs, won the event with twenty-six out of a possible thirty, while Linton, Bowersville, was second with twenty-one out of thirty. The feminine contest, however, ends with the county tourney.

Each of the nine boys' and girls' teams competing in the county tourney had a representative in the free throw event, in which considerable interest is being manifested each year. The event was inaugurated last year inasmuch as it behooves all coaches to emphasize foul shooting, as many games are won and lost at the free throw line.

CHILD IS SEVERELY HURT WHEN HE FELL THROUGH SKY-LIGHT

Johnny Whitacre, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitacre, N. Gallows St., suffered a probable fractured skull and concussion of the brain Monday morning when he fell through a sky-light to the cement floor of a building formerly used by the Hurley Dairy, owned by M. R. Snodgrass in an alley west of N. King St.

Johnny was playing with little Tommy Adair at the rear of the Adair home when he climbed upon the roof of the building. Johnny crawled over the sky-light which is believed to have been covered with snow so that he did not see the opening. Because of his sudden disappearance, Tommy went to look for his playmate and found he had fallen through to the floor.

The child laid on the floor fifteen minutes before the building could be entered. He was removed to the home of James D. Adair, N. King St., and a physician was summoned. He was later removed to his home.

ATTORNEY GENERAL APPROVES CONTRACT

Contract for the construction of the new state armory in Xenia, recently awarded to Samuel Plato, Louisville, Ky., contractor, was approved Monday by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, paving the way for commencing of construction work as soon as the weather permits. The proposed armory, to be built on a triangular site in the Dodds Addition, will cost $45,000, the amount of the low bid submitted by the Louisville contractor. The state originally appropriated $50,000 to finance construction of the armory building.

EAST HIGH NOTES

The championship game between East High Cubs and Dayton Hi-Y teams will be staged in East High gym Monday night beginning at 8:15.

Dayton has long been an enemy of East High and has been easily defeated until the last two years when she has been giving plenty of trouble, both on her own and the home court. This year East High succeeded in gaining a victory after a hard fight by a score of 23-29.

In the return game in Dayton the Daytonians won by a score of 21-37.

Monday night will be the deciding game showing whether the Hi-Y or the Cubs are the champions of the series. Come one, come all and help the home team to win.

On Wednesday night of this week the Hi-Y team of Oxford will meet East Hi in this court.

COLD WEATHER MAY CAUSE CROP DAMAGE

Possible damage to fruit and other crops which had started to bud, caused by the sudden change of weather has not been checked up by E. A. Drane, county agent, he announced Monday.

It is believed that peaches, which had started to bud, have already been damaged by cold weather, and thought possible that other crops may have suffered.

ATTEMPTS TO BURN CINCINNATI HOTEL

CINCINNATI, O., March 3.—Police today are seeking a man who registered in the Denison Hotel here as D. L. Bow, who is alleged to have attempted to set fire to the hotel. When a guest detected the odor of smoke he called the proprietor, who broke into Bow's room to find the bed clothing and carpets piled in the middle of the floor and burning. The fire was extinguished. Damage was small and other guests in the hotel were not disturbed. Bow, meanwhile, had fled. Bow's correct name, police believe, is Larry Dugan. He is about forty years old.

FOR THE LOVE o' PAT

By C. L. WEBB © 1929

CHAPTER XLIX

At that moment Pat and the Doctor rounded the corner of the pilot-house. The former, evidently, had caught the latter part of Margery's statement, for she glanced up at Rex with an inquiring look in her eyes.

"Don't you think it's a fine idea, Rex?" she asked, a note of eagerness in her voice. "I've just been telling Frank about it and he agrees that it certainly can do no harm and may be of wonderful benefit! Talk to Jimmy, just as we do to each other. There's no use, of course, to ask him questions. But talk to him as if we thought he understood. Maybe he will—after awhile. At any rate, it will seem more human, more natural than to ignore him as we've been doing!"

"I think it's a mighty good plan—a whole of an idea!" avowed Rex with enthusiasm. Anything that Pat sanctioned or wanted quite naturally had Dallard's unqualified approval at once. But this proposal had struck him immediately as full of possibilities. Just the expression on Jimmy's face that he had noted upon his approach the moment before was sufficient to warrant his approval of the plan.

It was an interesting study to Gordon, from both a personal and a scientific viewpoint. Watching Rex or Pat or anyone talking to Jimmy, he was prone to wonder if, by any chance, the young man did get a glimmer occasionally of what it was all about?

Whether he did or whether he did not, Pat and her friends continued to give him the "talk cure." Probably, as Margery had said, he liked it. If he didn't, there was no indication on his part to show his dislike. Nor was there anything to show he did like it. It was Lucy Pine who naively observed: "Jimmy has the most detached manner!"

If complete indifference to everything and everybody around him was the sign of "detachment," then Jimmy's manner was "detached."

Dawn on the fifth day of the cruise saw the Bluebird's sharp prow cutting through the plate-famed waters of the Caribbean Sea. The soft, warm air, laden with a tropical fragrance, breathed also the romance and storied adventure that had lived there in the days of Morgan and Capt. Kidd.

"I'm perfectly sure," declared Pat, standing with Rex and Margery at the port rail and looking ahead across the green expanse of ocean toward the distant Barbados, "that if I'd been Jimmy instead of being born a girl, and had lived in the days when Kinghood Was in Flower, I should have been a fierce buccaneer! Just fancy the wild, free life!"

"Aya, fancy it!" yawned Rex unfeelingly. "Just fancy it—that's enough! The free life of cutthroats and scoundrels! Where can you find anything in the stories of those days to equal the perfected products of the present day—a yacht like this, for instance?"

"Well," conceded Pat magnanimously, "you're probably right. Much of the splendor and glory attributed to the old buccaneer days, I suppose, would be tinsel and whitewash in the golden realities of the twentieth century!"

The course steered by Captain Lee had been almost due south from New York, the yacht passing between Porto Rico and Jamaica, into the Caribbean. The itinerary planned by Pat and her friends would take them past the Barbados to Trinidad, thence around the east coast of South America to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, down through the strait of Magellan and then up through the South Pacific to San Francisco. That had been the route planned.

The yacht had been running all day under greatly reduced speed. This was owing to the more or less dangerous course lying between the Barbados. This course, Captain Lee explained, was noted for its many ugly coral reefs that lay hidden beneath the water's surface. In good weather, when there was no sea running, the danger was greatly obviated, although navigators never overlooked the need of cautious navigation.

During the day the yacht passed within a few miles of several islands, all small, but covered with a profuse tropical growth.

Just after the dinner gong sounded, and as Margery and Pat, walking a few feet ahead of Rex and the doctor, were about to enter the doorway leading to the main cabin, the squat figure of the red-haired deck hand suddenly rounded the corner of the pilot house. He seemed at the same instant to catch sight of the two girls, for he whirled as though on a pivot and darted back in the direction from which he had come.

But in that instant Margery had obtained a full look at him. On this occasion her memory performed its duty. She knew then where she had seen those piggy eyes and that surly, cruel mouth before. It had been the scrubby moustache he had grown that had prevented her recognition of him that day at the dock.

"Hah!" The ejaculation leaped from her lips. She, too, whirled, facing her friends, her arm raised in a theatrical gesture, commanding attention.

"Did you see that man just then?" she cried excitedly, her eyes wide with a sudden, new-born fear. The fellow's motions had been so swift that he might have escaped the others' sight. But he hadn't, as it happened. They had all seen him. They stared at her wonderingly.

"I just recognized him!" she went on in a tragic, husky half-whisper. "It's the roughneck that blackjacked me that day—the brute who knocked poor Jimmy down! What—oh, what do you suppose, is he doing, or planning to do here! It can't be simply coincidence! That man is a hireling of Maxwell! He's aboard this yacht for some evil purpose—to kill Jimmy, most likely! What shall we do?"

The ominous portent embodied in Margery's startling declaration was unmistakable. Facts were facts and there was no evading them. This man was a Maxwell agent. He could be on board this yacht for no other purpose than to do Maxwell's dirty work!

"We must notify the Captain at once!" announced Rex Dallard with a grim seriousness. "The fellow's very presence here bespeaks a plot of Maxwell's hatching! He must be put off the yacht at the very earliest opportunity! In the meantime he should be locked up! We'd better see the Captain right away!"

They met Captain Lee at the head of the staircase as he was coming down from the plothous on his way to dinner. He alone of the ship's officers, at the specific request of Pat, ate with the owner and her guests. Private party etiquette differs ordinarily from that maintained aboard passenger vessels, where it is considered an honor to be invited to sit at the captain's table.

Rex Dallard lost no time in making Captain Lee acquainted with the facts concerning the deck hand whom Margery had just recognized and the positive menace that his presence aboard the yacht presented. He went on still further pointing out to the captain the absolute necessity of making it impossible for the man to work any fell design by locking him up securely until they reached some port, where the fellow could be put ashore.

"You understand, of course, Captain," continued Rex, "that we would not ask you to act in this radical manner unless we were absolutely certain the facts in the case warrant extreme measures. There is no chance that we are making any mistake. This man is a hireling of Maxwell's and his presence here can be for no other purpose than to do Maxwell's bidding! When you consider that the sum of money involved totals fourteen million dollars, you will realize the need for the precautions I am urging!"

"I realize it fully, Mr. Dallard," Captain Lee assured him. "And I give you my word—all of you—that I have included the three others in a sweeping gesture, that I shall act immediately. Within ten minutes the man will be securely confined in the yacht's strong room!"

YOUNG FAN HIKES THREE DAYS TO GET SIGHT OF MOVIE FAVORITES

By LYLE ABBOTT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 3.—Screen stars and screen business thrive on admiration.

But recently, Sue Carol and her husband, Nick Stuart, film stars, and Daniel B. Clark, a chief camera man for William Fox learned that admiration can be dangerous.

The three were puzzling over what to do with Barney Davis, 19, a hero-worshipping Prescott, Ariz., newsboy, sole support of his invalid mother.

Barney reached Hollywood after three days of painful tramping and hitchhiking. He was ragged, covered with dust, and had nothing in the world but a loaf of bread which some kind person had given him.

Clark had picked Barney out of a crowd of

The Theater

Who are the greatest stage stars of modern times? E. H. Sothern, David Warfield, George Arliss, Otis Skinner, Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Anglin, John Drew, John Barrymore, Al Jolson, Ruth Chatterton, Julia Marlowe, Eddie Cantor? Charles B. Dillingham, one of America's most noted producers, names not one of these among his first seven.

After thirty-four years' contact, the theater in America is "O. K.," he finds. One of the few things wrong is that there are too many theaters in New York to get good plays to fill them. A playwright used to take six months to write a play but now they turn them out while you wait. "America is hungry for good plays because they have had to go on a diet of the lack of high grade authors," he said. He believes the talkies are all right because they make theater goers and are giving opportunity to actors and actresses. He admits they are cutting into the spoken drama on the stage and indicated that theater managers may "get smart" and, after producing plays themselves, make them into talkies.

James L. Kilgallen, interviewed Dillingham in Florida for the first time in twenty-five years. Dillingham was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1868 and has produced 100 plays since 1900 and managed more than fifty prominent stage stars.

"I put Fred Stone in a class all by himself," says Dillingham. "He is the miracle man of the stage. He staged a great come back after his legs were broken in an airplane accident. He is one of the few stage celebrities who never has a kick against another player. He is the only one I know, except Will Rogers, who will not take his full pay when a producer runs into rough luck—say a blizzard which stops the show. He has real talent and rose to the top of his profession from the lowly and unappreciated appearances in a dime museum in Chicago. He is the dancer par excellence.

"Sarah Bernhardt was super human. She had no peer as an actress. She was superbly incomparable in the art of the spoken drama. She knew everything about the stage except money. She was stickler for detail. I saw her setting the props for one of the performances herself.

"Elsie Janis I would term the 'maid of all work.' She writes the music, gets up the dialogue, puts on her own dances and has the art of mimicry down to a science. "Will Rogers is the world's superhumorist and the best informed man on national topics in the country. He is the greatest extemporaneous talker the stage has ever seen. It is nothing for him to keep an audience entertained for two or more hours on extemporaneous conversation.

"Maxine Elliott, the most beautiful woman who ever graced the American stage, had the brain of a broker. She had a great business as well as artistic head. She was the typical brunette American beauty.

"George M. Cohan is the genius of the stage. He can do anything. He writes plays, produces them, composes music and he is without peer as a dancing master. His art is typically American. "Billy Burke, who is now the life of Flo Ziegfeld, was the greatest soubrette we ever had. She stood out above them all in light comedies and musical shows."

THREE HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR HOUSE BREAKING IN JAMESTOWN

Charged with entering an inhabited dwelling for the purpose of committing a felony, three Jamestown men, Smith Huff, colored, Alfred Walhall and Urie Allen were bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $1,000 each Saturday by W. E. Reid, village mayor.

Reports made to authorities indicated that the three men, while under the influence of liquor, visited the residence of William A. Rigglesman some time after midnight Friday and when Rigglesman, who was in bed asleep, refused to admit them to his home, they battered down the front door.

Rigglesman, who filed the affidavit against the trio, said the men threatened him with death if he reported the incident to authorities.

The men under arrest were also questioned Saturday relative to two fires, believed of incendiary origin, which destroyed two barns near Jamestown Saturday morning.

They were questioned by Chas. Marks, a deputy state fire marshal from Washington C. H., but the marshal declined to say whether the men admitted having any connection with the fires. He said another man, a detective, would invoke a further investigation Monday.

A barn owned by Mrs. F. W. Ogan, Springfield, on a farm operated by W. S. Weimer, burned near Jamestown at 3 a. m. Saturday and two mules and three head of cattle were also consumed by the flames. Two hours later a barn on the Dr. W. M. Henry farm, one mile north of Jamestown, was also destroyed and approximately 200 bushels of corn and a large quantity of other grains also burned.

"ANGEL" TO WED

FARMERS TO ANSWER MANY QUESTIONS OF ENUMERATORS SOON

COLUMBUS, O., March 3.—Farm operators are being asked to have ready answers to no fewer than 232 pertinent and personal questions about themselves, their families, their homes, and their businesses, when the federal census enumerators visit the farms in April of this year to take the 1930 decennial census.

The census returns are designed to show a great deal more than simply the number, age, and sex of the rural population of the country. They cover nearly every detail of the operations of the farm and the livestock and equipment on it; its ownership, value, and indebtedness; the conditions under which life is lived on it. Infinitesimal details such as the yields of vegetables in the gardens have not been overlooked.

Sample copies of the blanks to be used in making the returns are being distributed to members of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Ohio State University here, and to other persons in contact with farm dwellers, with the intention of getting the blanks into the hands of the farmers so that they may be understood and the information compiled before the enumerators begin their work in April.

Inspector Recovers

No clues to the identity of the assailants who shot Inspector Henry J. Garvin, of the Detroit police crime and bomb squad, while on his way to the police station have been uncovered. Photo shows Garvin as he left the hospital. Gangsters are believed to have done the shooting, since they have been fought persistently by the inspector.

BRIDE WAS REALLY SERVANT SHE SAYS

STEBENVILLE, O., March 3.—When Alice Peck married Jose Garula in Wellburg, W. Va., July 21, 1927, she took on what she thought was a honeymoon visit to the groom's parents at Las Vegas, N. M., but, instead, the husband made her act as a servant to his parents, who lived in a hovel without doors or floors.

The foregoing charges were made by Mrs. Garula in her petition for a divorce which is on file in the Jefferson County court here today. She was only 17 years old at the time of her marriage.

The woman also charges abuse, and asks the restoration of her maiden name.

WOMAN NEVER HAD GIVEN NAME

POMEROY, O., March 3.—Bill Smith's wife has no first name, it was revealed in court here today.

The strange fact came to light when Squire Fred Gilmore asked the woman to sign her name in full to an affidavit.

She signed "L. C. Smith," and the squire repeated that he wanted her full name.

Mrs. Smith explained that she did not have a first name. When she was born, Mrs. Smith said, her father wanted her to be named Lucille and mother insisted that she should be called Lucy. Neither of the parents would give in, and as time passed, and the girl still did not have a name, friends and relatives called her "L. C."

Hence, today, while she is the mother of two grown children, she is still known as "L. C." but not Elsie.

LABOR DEPARTMENT TO HALT MARATHON

DETROIT, March 3.—State labor department officials were preparing today to bring to a halt the dance marathon at Eastwood Park in which five couples survive after 106 days of shuffling about on a dance floor.

After county authorities had failed to find any law under which they could halt the marathon, Eugene J. Brock, state labor commissioner, decided the dancers were violating a law forbidding women work more than ten hours a day or fifty-four hours a week.

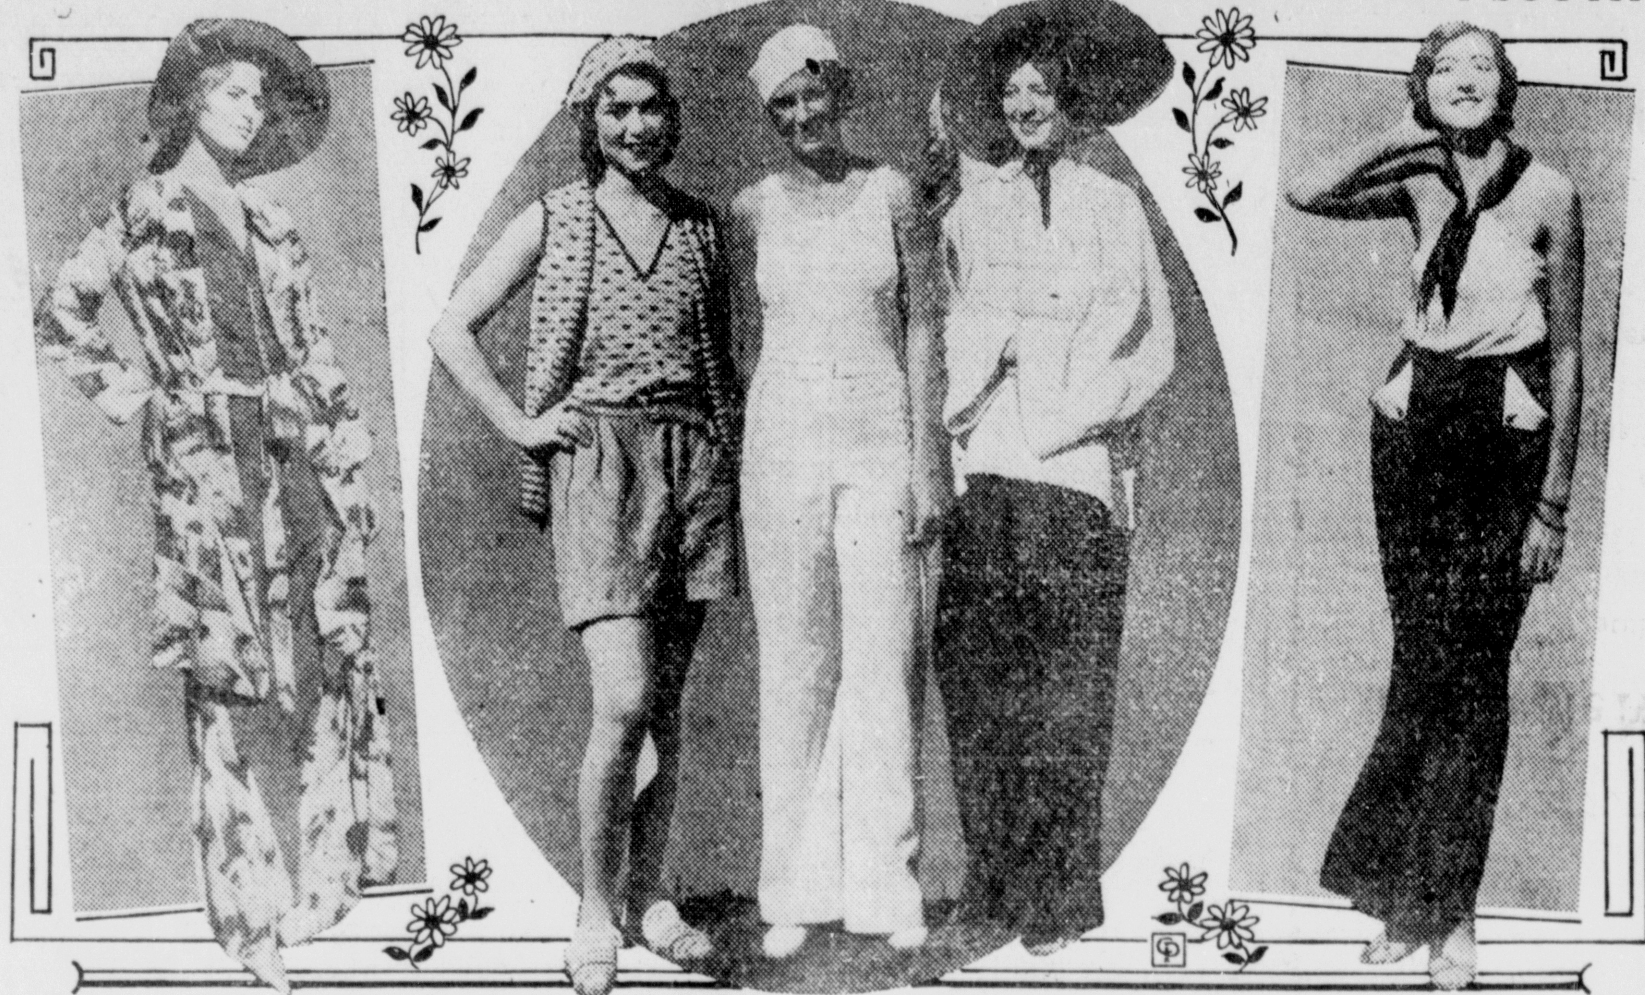

Under the rules of the marathon, the dancers must be on the dance floor and more or less in motion for forty-five minutes out of every hour. They are allowed a fifteen-minute rest period each hour.

HOW TO ESTIMATE WEIGHT OF SILAGE

To determine the quantity of silage in a silo it is necessary to calculate the number of cubic feet of silage and multiply this by the weight per cubic foot.

The number of cubic feet may be found by multiplying the area of the circular cross section of the silo in square feet by the depth of silage in feet. Square the diameter of the silo and multiply this by the decimal, 0.7854, this will give the area of the circular base which multiplied by the height of silage will give the volume of silage in cubic feet.

The weight of a cubic foot of silage varies with its depth in the mass of settled silage. The average weight per cubic foot for successive five-foot levels, according to A. E. Perkins, associate in dairy husbandry at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, is 34.7 pounds in the first five feet, 38.4 pounds in the second five feet, 40.1 in the third, 41.3 in the fourth, and 41.7 pounds for each cubic foot below twenty feet in the mass.

However, there are so many variable factors affecting the weights, such as moisture content, proportion of grain to stover, and time after filling, that it is not possible to calculate the tonnage very accurately.

The Ohio Experiment Station, at Wooster, publishes a leaflet which gives the capacity in tons of vari-

AUTOISTS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

Occupants of a coupe had a miraculous escape from injury when the car, driven by Peter Howell, Wilmington, and also occupied by his brother, Foster, who was holding a six-months-old baby on his lap, overturned down a five-foot embankment into a ditch on the Wilmington Pike, four miles southeast of Xenia, early Saturday afternoon.

The accident occurred when the coupe, being driven toward Wilmington, attempted to pass a sedan on a narrow bridge in front of Weaver sawmill. The Howell struck the bridge and then hurled into the ditch.

Although the coupe was damaged to some extent, the sedan, owned by E. C. Spriggs, living on Hickman farm, near Bridgeport, had only a bent fender to show the accident.

L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, investigated the accident.
